SALARY IN TWELFTHS

Controller's Decision in Regard to School Officers.

TEACHERS' PAY IN TENTHS

Former Will Lose and Latter Will Not by the Ruling.

DISPUTED CASES ARE HELD UP

Judge Tracewell Discourses at Length on Much-Mooted Problem-Lays Down the Law.

R. J Tracewell, controller of the treasury, today rendered the much-looked-for decision to the District Commissioners on the payment of the salaries of school teachers and officers of the District schools. He holds that teachers should be paid in ten installments and school officers who perform service all the year round in twelve installments

The controller does not touch some of the questions submitted to him, and will probably take them up later.

The accision is as follows: "I am in receipt of your reference dated October 4, 1906, wherein you request a decision, among other questions therein submitted by you, as to whether the teachers and officers of the District schools shall be paid the salaries appropriated by law for their respective places for the present fiscal year in installments of tenths or twelfths. the names of such officers and teachers appearing upon the payrolls of the schools of the District of Columbia for the month of September, each of whom was legally ap-pointed as such officer or teacher by the present board of education, some of whom, however, in each class not having been actually appointed by the board of education until after the 1st day of July last, but the appointments to which purport to relate back to and be effective from July 1 last. "As to this latter class you ask on what dates should their salaries commence.

"As the above questions affect the prompt payment of more than a thousand teachers and officers, I will dispose of them in this decision, leaving for future consideration and determination the remaining questions of your submission, as they involve the alaries of but a limited number of officers and teachers.

"When the present board of education, on the 5th day of July last, organized under the act of June 30 (34 S. L., 314), which provided for its existence, it found the ollowing regulation of the old board of education: The salaries of all teachers duly elected, whose service commences with the school year, and who shall perform their duties, shall begin on the first day of September and shall be paid in ten monthly installments, the first to be made on the first of October, or as near that date as practicable. The salaries of other teachers shall begin when they enter upon their duties. The pay of a school day shall be the thirtieth part of a tenth part of the annual salary of a teacher.' "The present board adopted and made this regulation its regulation.

Powers of Board.

"The board of education, among its other powers granted by the act supra, is authorized to 'determine all questions of general policy relating to the schools . . nd direct expenditures.' This regulation is one fixing the method of expending the appropriations for teachers' salaries. Is it ultra vires? Teachers in the public schools of the District of Columbia have been paid according to its provisions continuously, under laws appropriating for their salaries not substantially different from the present law since the year 1870. This construction by the administrative officers, whose duty it has been to pay the salaries of teachers, unless clearly contrary to law, should not be overturned, but, on the contrary, up-"I held in 11 Con. Dec., 287, under date of December 10, 1904, that notwithstanding the provisions of the act of April 28, 1904, which provides:

"That the annual compensation of officers, agents and employes of the United States for services rendered subsequent to States for services rendered additional twelve June 30, 1904, shall be divided into twelve equal installments, one of which shall be equal installments, one of which shall be equal to the state of the shall be equal to t the pay for each calendar month * * * * such latter statute was not applicable to the expenditures of the appropriation for teachers in the District schools, and that the practice of making the school year one of ten months instead of a full fiscal year for the purpose of paying teachers their salaries was not in violation of law or of that act, the reason given being that such teachers are neither 'officers, agents or employes of the United Staates.' "It is provided by section 6 of the act of Congress approved June 30, 1906 (34 S. L., "Hereafter, where the compensation of any person in the service of the United States is annual or monthly, the following rules for the division of time and computation of pay for services rendered are by established. Annual compensation shall be divided into twelve equal instalments, one of which shall be the pay for each calendar month; and in making payments for a fractional part of a month one-thir-tieth of one of such instalments or of a monthly compensation shall be the daily rate of pay. * •

In Tenn Installments. "The regulation supra, providing for the payment of salaries of teachers in ten instalments is not repugnant to this latter act, for the reason that the act is confined to salaries of persons in the service of the United States.

"The officers and teachers of the District

the United States.

"The Attorney General, in 23 A. G., 59, makes the above proposition too plain for extended argument. The question before him was whether the civil service act approved January 16, 1883, known as the Pendleton act, which is applicable to officers and employes of the United States. cers and employes of the United States. was applicable to clerks and other employes of the District of Columbia. He held that such act was not applicable.

Among other things in the opinion, he said: "These citations and decisions make it very clear that the officers and employes of the District of Columbia are not officers and employes of the general government of the United States, but of the municipal corporation known as the District of Commbia. They receive their compensation from the moneys of the District, half of which are contributed through the appro-priation by Congress and half by taxation upon property of the inhabitants of the District. They are as distinct from the civil service of the United States as would be the officers of any city government in one of the states of the Union from the civil service of the state itself. I therefore advise you that the provisions of the civil service act cannot legally be applied to the officers and employes of the District of Columbia.' "This regulation, in so far as I am advised, is not in conflict with any other law with which I am familiar. It certainly is not derogatory to public policy, and works no perceivable injury to the teachers, but had its inception in, and no doubt was based upon the fact that all the real services rendered by the teachers are rendered during the active school year, namely, from September 1 to June 30 of a given year.

"If teachers were paid in twe've installments, instead of ten, commencing with July 1, it might and would often happen readily be given.

"I therefore conclude that the act of the "I therefore conclude that the act of the school board in adopting the regulation supra, dividing the salary of teachers in ten installments, the first to be paid on October 1, is not contrary to law or public policy and should be upheld.

"As regards those designated as officers in the school act, supra, which reorganized the board of education and in the appropriation act made to carry its provisions into effect for the present fiscal year—when it is considered that the board of education has adopted no regulation which looks to-

it is considered that the board of education has adopted no regulation which looks to-ward paying their salaries upon any other basis than by dividing such salaries into twelve equal installments, one for each month of the fiscal year, commencing with the month of July—a different proposition is presented and a different rule would seem to apply to apply.
"There is nothing before me to indicate that such school officers do not perform substantial service continuously during the fiscal year, and, if so, equity and good conscience would demand that they be paid, in the absence of law or proper regulations to the contrary, their salaries in twelve monthly installments instead of ten. It is true that in the past, and for many years, several of the school officers have been paid their salaries as teachers in installments of teaths instead of truths. But ments of tenths instead of twelfths. But in the absence of law or regulation to that effect I am not prepared to say that such administrative act has the force of law.

The New Board. "The present board of education effected an organization and became such board on the 5th day of July, 1906. I understand from your submission that on certain dates after its organization—and it could perform no legal act before such date-it appointed certain officers and teachers and directed that such appointments should relate back to July 1 last. "The only purpose that I can conceive for such act was to place such appointees in a pay status from the 1st of July last. a pay status from the 1st of July last.

As to the teachers who receive their entire pay for the school year for services rendered from the 1st of September to the close of the fiscal year, and not otherwise, such antedating of their appointments is without practical effect. But as to the officers-if such act of antedating an appointment is legal—it would in effect give them the salaries provided by law for the places to which they were appointed before they were school officers, and before they were in the service of the District government. The appointment to office is a substantial physical fact occurring at some particular period of time. Be-fore that particular period of time the per-son then appointed is not an officer any more than any other person who is never appointed. The appointing power can no more antedate the fact of such appointment, unless by express authority of law, than it could antedate the fact of a removal from office. It would not be seriously contended that a person actually removed from office on the 1st day of October of any year could, by any act of the removing power in saying that such removal should be effective from the 1st day of September, make it so and thereby deprive such removed officer of the salary earned in his office for the month of September. No more can a person legally draw a sal-ary prior to the date of his actual appointment and entry into the office. "It is therefore held that school officers should be paid their salaries from the dates of their actual appointments and entry upon the duties of their respective office thereunder, in installments of twelfths, all such installments being paid for a month's service, having regard to fractional service if the appointment was made after the first day of a given month."

Majority Will Be Paid.

Acting upon this decision, the auditor and disbursing officer of the District will allow the payment of the great bulk of the teachers to proceed at once. Checks will be prepared and will be ready early next week. These teachers will be paid in tenths and will lose no salary.

The several disputed cases, including those of the dismissed teachers and their successors, will still remain in abeyance, and the salaries of the new incumbents will be withher until the controller is heard from again. controller's decision, in twelfths, and their
